EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WILL WATCH BOLTERS

Participants in Recent Primary Urged to Support the Nominees

The Fulton County Democratic executive committee, in a card signed by chairman Eugene D. Thomas and Secretary J. O. Cochran, urges every participant in the recent state primary to support the party's nominees at the regular election on November 3.

The executive committee also asks to be given the names of men who bolt the primary, so that they may be barred from participation in future Democratic primaries.

The statement of the executive committee follows:

The Fulton County Democratic executive committee urges every Democrat in this county to go to the polls on November 3 and cast their vote for the nominees. This is a duty especially incumbent upon every man who participated in the recent primaries. The state primary has been the butt and mainstay of white supremacy in this state since the Civil war.

"We urge all loyal Democrats to see to it that the regular Democratic ticket contains the name of all the nominees of the party. We request all who can help to form this committee, with the names of those citizens who bolt the primary with the idea in view of enforcing the rule of the state executive committee, which says that no person who bolts the primary shall again be allowed to vote in a Democratic primary in this state. While there are many in this county so dishonest as to participate in a primary and then bolt its nominees because the primary did not go to suit them, yet there are men who would not hesitate to do so. No man has the right to enter into a primary and then refuse to abide by the result of that primary because it did not go to suit him. The proper place for the white people in this state is to settle their political differences in the Democratic primaries, and the people should remember that it is just as much their duty to abide the result of the primary as it would be to keep a personal obligation, and just as dishonorable to fail to abide the primary as it would be to repudiate a just obligation.

"Therefore, we request that the Democrats of this county be on their guard on behalf of the Democratic nominees."

Citizens Make Vigorous

Fight for New County

A NEW CREAMERY

ESTABLISHED IN ATLANTA

There is something new in Atlanta, in the way of an up-to-date creamery, and the start that it has made is such that it is in position to know about all things, say that it will prove one of the things that Atlanta has been looking for and needing for many a long year. The name of the new institution is the Ato-Creamery Products company, and the first milk delivered to the city is at 97 Garnett street. A second depot will be opened in another part of the city tomorrow morning, and arrangements have been perfected. Mr. J. M. Arnold, president of the new company, says for the opening of Atlanta of these milk depots in different parts of the city.

The depot at 97 Garnett street is used in after the most approved manner; there is nothing that the demands of modern dairy require that has been put out of the way. Keeping the milk at a certain temperature is in force, and altogether the depot looks very attractive. The milk is kept absolutely clean, and a general invitation has been extended to every physician in the city to come and inspect the plant and see for himself that there is at least one absolutely clean, sanitary creamery in the city.

The new company is making a specialty of pasteurized milk, and guarantees to Mr. Arnold, stating that every drop of the milk comes up to the recognized standard for pasteurized milk.

DRINK MORE WATER

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take Salts for Backache or Bladder trouble.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you may help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll have a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also use from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say take all the Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—(Adv.)

LAST APPEAL IN FRANK CASE COMES UP MONDAY

Defense Motion to Set Aside Verdict Will Be Heard

The last appeal in the case of Leo M. Frank, the motion to set aside the verdict of guilty on the ground that it is illegal because Frank was not present in the court room when it was rendered, will be argued on a demurrer before the supreme court of Georgia Monday.

Their briefs have been prepared and the attorneys for both the state and the defense say that they are ready to proceed with the case.

When the motion was brought in the superior court Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey filed a general demurrer, which was sustained on June 6 by Judge Hill. The defense immediately appealed.

The demurrer practically controls the motion, so the case hinges on the decision of the supreme court on the demurrer.

The motion to set aside is in a way more important than the extraordinary motion for a new trial, which Frank recently lost, for should he win on the technical motion, lawyers say he could not again be tried, and would be freed.

In event Frank loses on the motion to set aside, his attorneys will at once attempt to carry the case into the United States court on the point, it is said.

Attorney General Clegg will assist Solicitor General Dorsey in the prosecution of the case before the supreme court, and he and the solicitor have both prepared lengthy briefs.

The state stresses its contention that even if the motion is well founded in law it should have been brought at the time the original motion for a new trial was made, instead of after the supreme court had passed upon the case, and the extraordinary motion on the ground of new evidence was pending.

The motion to set aside was brought by Attorneys Ty & Peoples and Haas & Haas.

The Advantages of Magneto Ignition

THE new Overland is equipped with the finest high tension magneto.

This is entirely independent of the starting and lighting system.

High tension magneto ignition is conceded by the great majority of experts and engineers to be the most efficient. Also it is the most expensive.

All high-priced cars are equipped with a magneto.

Most popular priced cars have no magneto. Only the cheaper and less effective battery ignition is furnished.

Those manufacturers who use the battery ignition do so to cut down their manufacturing costs. They do not furnish a magneto because it is too costly.

A high tension magneto is furnished with the Overland because—

- it means a faster getaway.
- it means a livelier motor.
- it means more power at all speeds.

—it keeps the motor cool.

—it develops more power due to a hotter spark, which increases its heat as the motor speed increases.

The heat of an Overland spark, by actual test, is ten times greater than the spark of the ordinary battery ignition.

The 'high tension Overland magneto requires no dry cells.

The absence of a high tension magneto on a car is an indication that the car is not all it should be. Something very important is lacking, consequently there might be many other important things left off, of which you are not aware.

The Overland has every practical and essential improvement.

When you purchase an Overland you get the most stylish, most comfortable, most convenient, most complete and most carefully constructed car for the price in the world.

IRENE AND BOBBIE SMITH-FORSYTH

CURZON SISTERS - FORSYTH

Clever Vaudeville Acts at Forsyth-Annette Kellerman Pictures Return to Grand-Atlanta Dark All Week

TELEPHONE TANGLE

READ FORSYTH'S BILL

A Telephone Tangle, Joseph Hart's successful headline, William Gould and Belle Ashlyn, the cleverest of all specialty stars. Howard the wonderful Scotch ventriloquist, Irene and Bobby Smith, the wonderful theatrical profession; the Curzon sisters, the flying butterflies; Lowell and Esther low in a flirtation and Twists the funny contortionist make up the bill that will be the program of entertainment this week at the Grand Forsyth.

Charlotte Bannell wrote "A Telephone Tangle" is just something that happens every day. Dorothy Regal being a playing company of eight and the scene most realistic. The story deals with the pranks of a girl at the switchboard. Tired with the routine of life at the board she decided to have some fun, and when she crosses the wire there in all sorts of fun. Any one can imagine the trouble such a prank could bring about and Charlotte Bannell has thought out some scenes that are as much fun as the act itself. The act is one of the best features of vaudeville and a headliner worthy of the Forsyth.

Billy Gould, comedian, author, humorist, composer, and all that qualifies a vaudeville star. He is a present day Broadway favorite just on a vacation from his regular beat. With Billy Ashlyn is a comedy short tour of some of the principal cities in the Keith circuit and will be his first visit to Atlanta. With latter song and comedy he is going to win his way to the first row on Atlanta vaudeville.

Howard, the Scotch ventriloquist will introduce to Forsyth audience. The entertaining ventriloquist has returned to America from his tour of Europe. He came back because things were more pleasant on this side now. The Keith office quickly gave him a route and he is to be one of the Forsyth features.

The Curzon Sisters, southern girls who are internationally known because they are the creators of the aerial stunt known as "flying butterflies" will be another of the curls for the week. They will perform one of the most sensational ever seen on the local stage. Irene and Bobby Smith, genuinely pretty girls, with worth while songs, Lowell and Twists the funny contortionist will contribute to the entertainment of the Forsyth.

Kellerman returns to the Grand. The broken attendance record and setting a new precedent for the Grand. Annette Kellerman, the famous swimmer, returned to the Grand Theatre this week. She drew over 1000 people in June of this year during the nine days uninterrupted run.

Kellerman picture had the most phenomenal success. Fully 100,000 people have seen it since it was first presented on Broadway less than six months ago.

It is the "perfect woman" in this spectacular production, the Universal Moving Picture company has been chosen to believe it has written the last word in moving picture.

The beauty of the story, written by Lewis T. Peacock, already noted for his aquatic drama, is vividly enhanced by the Bermuda Island scenery which the picture was staged to secure. The coral reefs, submarine grottoes, semi-tropical verdure and the strange life of the coral-creepers furnish an entrancing background for the dramatic story.

It will be presented at the Grand for two weeks commencing on 12 until 15th.

JEWELL KELLEY COMPANY AT BIJOU THEATRE.

As many requests have come to the management of the Bijou theater for an old fashioned, side splitting comedy, that the Jewell Kelley company has decided to present the coming week the funniest of all farce comedies, entitled "The Whole Family." This is a farce in three acts, and it is said to be one of the most startling, amusing and immensely funny comedies that has been given the stage in the last decade.

It will give every member of the company an opportunity to appear in consequential roles, and the many complications, tangles, and absurd situations that occur during the three acts, will keep Bijou audiences convulsed with laughter. The play also admits of an introduction of many interesting specialties in singing and dancing, and will be interesting news to patrons of the Bijou that Vernon Wallace is quite a singer and will be heard in several popular ballads. Matinees will be given daily at 2:30 and the evening performance at 8:30. Monday night ladies will be admitted free as usual.

BLOSSOMS FROM MINTYRE & HEATH'S "HAM TREE"

This play my travelling organization will first have to satisfy New York audiences. So he caused the members of the cast who are associated with Miss Blanche Hall in Mr. Manners play, to give several performances at the Court theater during its unusual run. "Theater patrons in other cities are entitled to performances identical with those of the Metropolitan," continued Mr. Morano, "and this I am proud to say I have accomplished in sending 'Peg' on tour again with a cast that has New York players."

Mr. J. M. Carter, of 26 Bonnie Bree avenue, is very anxious to locate her sixteen-year-old son, William Yancy Carter, who has disappeared. The boy is described as being very slender, about 5 feet 6 inches tall and has one upper tooth missing. He was employed at the T. S. Lewis Cracker company.

No reason for his disappearance can be ascribed by his mother. The mother thinks the lad may have become stage-struck and joined some theatrical troupe.

PRISON FARM COTTON MAY BE REDUCED IN 1915

Governor Makes Suggestion in Letter to Prison Commission

In a letter to the prison commission, Governor Slaton suggests that the amount of cotton to be planted on the prison farm be reduced next year, and foodstuffs substituted. His letter follows:

"October 24, 1914.

"Honorable Prison Commission of Georgia.

"Gentlemen—in view of the present condition regarding the production of cotton, and of the fact that in your official capacity you produce large quantities of cotton on the prison farm, I desire to suggest the desirability of limiting the amount of cotton planted next year, and in place thereof, that more foodstuffs should be raised on the prison farm.

"It is my understanding that if a larger quantity of foodstuffs should be raised it can be utilized and an expense of the maintenance of the department be thereby lessened.

"If the same amount of cotton is produced next year as was in 1914, and if it be true that the cost of production is approximately 10 cents per pound, in my judgment the price that cotton will bring next year will be less than the cost of production, and therefore it is in the general advantage of the cotton producer of the southern states that they limit the amount of cotton for 1915.

"I simply make to you this suggestion in order that you may take it under advisement, and then give to it such weight as the conditions with which you are familiar shall require."

In five minutes! No stomach misery, Heartburn, Gases or Dyspepsia

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of indigestion or dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take Pape's Diapepsin occasionally. Anything you eat will be digested, nothing can ferment or turn into acid, poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Flatulence, a Feeling of Fullness after Eating, Nervous Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Bile, looseness, Heartburn, Water Brash, Pain

In Stomach and Intestines. Headaches from stomach are absolutely unknown where Pape's Diapepsin is used. It really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. It leaves nothing to ferment, sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large fifty-cent can of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist; then eat anything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, because every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines will vanish.

Should you be suffering from indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief in five minutes.—(Adv.)

GEORGIA MINISTER FINDS TRUE DELIVERANCE FROM BODY ILLS

Rev. J. Powell Tells How He Found New Strength to Give to His Laborers

Rev. J. Powell, of Statesboro, Ga., suffered from stomach troubles so seriously that they affected his work. He struggled on until he was suffering as best he could—hardly realizing perhaps, just how much sickness was hurting him.

One day he learned of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. He took the first dose—then decided to take the full treatment. He wrote:

"Since using the six bottles of your wonderful stomach remedy I feel like another man. I have been quite a wonder to me to know how one could have a stomach trouble like mine and live and do the work I did. I just thought the operation was over."

"Now I can eat what I please and it doesn't hurt me night or day."

The first dose was good to Rev. Mr.

Powell. It has been proof to thousands of people in all parts of the nation who are today grateful.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucus accretions, removes poisonous matter and brings swift relief to suffering from stomach ailment, liver and intestinal disorders. Many doctors have saved them from operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

We want all people who have chronic stomach trouble or constipation, no matter of how long standing, to try one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy—one dose will convince you. This is the medicine no one can afford to be without. It is full of surprising results. The most thorough operation is not required. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold by Jacobs Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.—(Adv.)

Exhibiting half a dozen Le Conte pears, each over twelve inches in circumference and weighing more than a pound and a quarter, O. E. Collum, 551 West Hunter street, said Saturday that there was big money in this fruit for Georgia farmers.

These pears are part of a crop now ripe in a lot 300 by 125 feet at Mr. Collum's home on West Hunter street. In the same lot are plum, peach and apple trees, all of which, says Mr. Collum, bear plentifully.

"Pears can be raised with great profit as an alternate crop with peaches," said Mr. Collum. "The same kind of land which will produce large numbers of Georgia peaches in July and August will produce Le Conte and other fine pears in September and October, thus giving the fruit grower double his usual profits.

"For there is big money in these pears. In good years, they bear until the branches almost break; every year they bear plentifully. For canning and preserving, every one produced can be sold to northern markets, no matter how big the crop. One of their advantages is that they keep for months, even after becoming ripe.

"They are easy to grow. The trees bear when three years old. They do not need spraying, if worked properly. My trees are whitewashed each spring to keep down bugs and worms; every fall I place wood ashes at the roots of each tree. These two operations keep off insects and also fertilize the trees. Common red clay soil is the best kind for pears."

Mr. Collum says that each year he raises so many pears that his family

"There is so much profit in pears, however, that I am going to get me some land in the country near Atlanta and go in for them on a large scale," he said.

Mr. Collum, whose offices are in the Austell building, says he will be glad to furnish any additional information to farmers and others who will write him.

The proprietor refused and he was taken out and shot. Then the soldiers looted the shop, she said.

Arrive

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—With the arrival at the Aguas Calientes national convention tomorrow or Monday of the twenty-eight Zapata delegates the question of the retirement of General Carranza as first chief of the Mexican constitutionalists will be taken up. This was reported in official advices to the

A new complication in the Mexican situation arose tonight in a statement issued by Rafael Zubaran, head of the Carranza agency here, declaring that "the Mexican customs henceforth neither will admit nor acknowledge the validity or authorization of any of the acts of Francisco Urquidí in the official capacity as Mexican consul general in New York."

Mr. Urojdli was called on by Carranza to resign, but in a published statement declared he took orders from the convention instead of Carranza.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

THE meeting of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs for the eighteenth annual convention on Tuesday in Albany, will be one of the most interesting events in years. Among the features that are attracting attention are the presidents' conference, the session devoted to youth and its problems, and cotton day. Among the prominent speakers on the program are Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the general federation; Mrs. Nellie Peters Black; Dr. Cassius Geisel, Dr. Frances Bradley, Mrs. L. G. Haley, president Alabama Federation, and Mrs. Young, director of the general federation. An interesting event of Wednesday evening will be the address on cotton as delivered by Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, who will wear on that occasion a handsome costume fashioned entirely of cotton material. In accordance with the suggestion of Mrs. Black, every woman in attendance will appear Wednesday in a costume of cotton fabric, designed to show what attractive and beautiful gowns can be made from the staple of the south. Much interest is centering in the miniature cotton show full way, while in other rooms the esthetic side of the question will receive due attention by the gathering together of rare and beautiful articles fashioned entirely of cotton. Mrs. Harvie Jordan is chairman of the exposition committee, Mrs. Black, vice president at large, while Mrs. John King Outley and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton are the honorary chairmen.

PART from the business side of the convention, the social entertainment planned will offer an unusually delightful opportunity for the reunion of prominent club women from all parts of the state who will be in attendance. The club women of Albany have arranged for the reception, comfort and pleasure of a large number of guests. In connection with the convention an informal reception will be held after the opening exercises on the evening of the 27th. To be held after the opening exercises on the evening of the 27th, the Daughters of the American Revolution will entertain at luncheon and the Daughters of the Confederacy will give a tea. A barbecue will be given at Blue Springs Thursday by the men of Albany. The Women's club will give a banquet the evening of the 29th.

Art Salon to Be Annual Event in Atlanta

The Atlanta Art association, which will open the first art salon ever held in the city during the second week of November, is particularly desirous of securing paintings from amateurs who have never before exhibited their work. In this way it hopes to discover new local talent, and, through the art salon, to encourage and aid young artists.

Children are especially invited to contribute specimens of their work; and the judges, in making their selections, will take into consideration the age and lack of experience of the young painters.

As the art salon is to be an annual event, new contributors will have the opportunity of presenting improved work next year, and this is sure to prove an inspiration to young Atlanta artists.

With the exception of good copies of old masters, only original work will be accepted by the jury. All paintings must be in by November 3, as the jury will make its decision on November 4. Oil paintings, water colors, etchings, china, pottery, sculpture, and other branches of art may be represented, and each artist has the privilege of submitting specimens of each kind of work. Only six pieces will be chosen from each artist's work, however, and in some instances, where the paintings are largely only three must be chosen.

Paintings for the exhibit should be sent to the Ponce de Leon apartment, where they will be hung. The salon will be opened on November 7, and will continue throughout the week following.

A large exhibit of the noted Pulpit factory and some fine sculpture will add to the interest of the salon.

Mrs. R. W. More, chairman of the art committee, or Mrs. Clarence Blosser will be glad to furnish further information in regard to the exhibit.

It Simply Can't Be Done

YOU can no more get clean, pure milk from an insanitary, ill-kept creamery than you can get pure drinking water from a stagnant pool. It simply can't be done!

The Argo Creamery Products Company is a new organization, and the method of treating milk and butter in the ARGO'S creamery is also new to this section of the country. One of Atlanta's greatest needs has been, for quite a long time, just such a dairy as that which has been opened by the ARGO CREAMERY. This new creamery is clean, well kept, sanitary in every respect, and the methods of handling the different kinds of milk and cream are the very latest known to modern dairying.

Argo Means Quality, Purity, Sanitation

We invite your inspection of the most up-to-date sanitary dairy equipment in the South. We guarantee our product to be absolutely perfect—clean, pure, sanitary. And every pint of

Argo Creamery's Milk Is Pasteurized Milk

The ARGO CREAMERY has been established in Atlanta for the sole purpose of furnishing the people of Atlanta absolutely pure milk, milk that is as pure as it is possible to make it—and that is exactly what we are now doing. We have already established our milk depot—absolutely sanitary in every respect—at 97 Garnett street, and tomorrow morning we open another in a different section of the city. We have arranged for sixteen locations for milk depots, and every one of the sixteen will be in operation before very long.

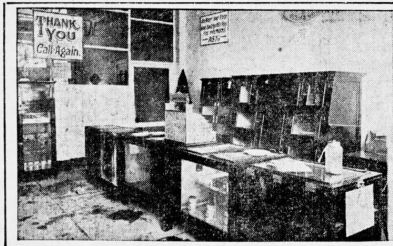

We are now in position, however, to supply you our celebrated PASTEURIZED MILK in quart bottles, and to make delivery a very few minutes after we get your order over the telephone. We deliver anywhere in Atlanta, by our and we guarantee that when our milk is delivered to you, at your home, it will be delivered at a temperature of not more than 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Isn't that worth something to you? Isn't it worth something to know that the milk you get is delivered to you at absolutely the same temperature as when it left the creamery? Ask your doctor if it isn't.

We know that our creamery is absolutely clean and sanitary—every inch of it. We know this because we made it so. But we want you to know it, too. We invite you to come to our creamery at any time that you can do so—we invite you to come in and inspect every inch of our place, our methods and our product. We want YOU to KNOW ABSOLUTELY that we have a clean, sanitary dairy, and that the milk and butter you get from us is absolutely clean and sanitary. We present below some

We pride ourselves on the fact that we know what we are doing—that we know how to do what we have started out to do, and that we are fully competent to give the people of Atlanta the purest milk that is possible to give—PASTEURIZED milk. The head of the ARGO CREAMERY, Mr. A. M. Arnold, is an experienced dairyman from Minnesota, and the head of the ARGO'S butter making department is Mr. H. P. Norwood, for the past three years in charge of the butter making department at the Georgia Experiment Station, Griffin, Ga. We are doing what we know how to do, and we want you to know just how we are doing it, hence our invitation to you to come and inspect our creamery.

The Ansley Hotel uses the products of the ARGO CREAMERY, and Mr. J. C. Evans, Steward of the Ansley, has given us permission to state in this advertisement that he has never used milk, cream and butter that came up to the ARGO standard. Mr. Evans knows good milk and butter, and his opinion of ARGO CREAMERY products should have weight with you.

Try the New External Treatment—Relieves by Inhalation and Absorption. No Stomach Dosage.

For years we have been doing ourselves to cure cold troubles despite the fact that vapor treatments are quicker and do not disturb the stomach. The trouble has been that the method of administering these vapors such as vapor lamps, etc., were very cumbersome. Vicks' VapoRub, however, and Pneumonia Salve contains Menthol, Thymol, Eucalyptol, Camphor, and Pine Tar, combined by a special process, so that they are vaporized when Vicks' is applied to the heat of the body. These vapors open the air passages, loosen the phlegm, and heal the inflamed mucous membrane.

For Catarrh and Head Colds melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors.

FURNITURE PRICES THAT Second Week of Big Sale

I surprised my friends last week with the really worth while furniture values. The prices and quality of the goods did it. The same points of merit did the talking. A lot of people came in just to say that they were glad that I was back in the furniture business, but these made purchases before leaving—just couldn't resist the talk of quality and price.

The second week of this sale begins tomorrow. My new stock is arriving and the goods now on the floor must be moved. There'll be still greater surprises this week. You are welcome to come and look, but the chances are you'll buy.

This week will offer unusual opportunities for purchases of bedroom furnishings, such as Brass and Steel Beds, Bungalow Beds, Steel Cots, Felt and Cotton Mattresses. Special values and prices on all of these.

Remember, my store is out of the HIGH RENT DISTRICT, and for that reason I can sell cheaper.

These Suits Should Sell Before Noon Monday!

Fifty-Three Broadcloth Suits $35

ONE of our "special delights" is to give good values. Those who buy our merchandise know that this is true.

A limited number of handsome Suits in Broadcloth (one of the models is shown here) came through a most unusual purchase.

It is a marvel to us (and will be to you when you see the Suits) how the maker could afford to use such splendid material and give such excellent workmanship, style and finish, at this modest price of $35—but that's his business. We only know that they were bought at an advantage, and that fifty-three women have an opportunity of sharing this advantage tomorrow.

A surprise awaits you, who appreciate paying $35 for a Suit that would seem reasonable at $60.

These Suits sound the note of newness in styles. They qualify the essentials—Elegance and Service.

Colors are brown, green, navy and black. Sizes 16, 36, 40 inches. We've said enough—let the Suits tell the story—tomorrow.

With Brickley Out Harvard May Alter Play

Loss of Star Halfback Means That Coach Haughton Will Employ Open Style of Play Much More Freely Than Had Been Anticipated

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Harvard's type of football is quite likely to be considerably remodeled in preparation for Princeton and Yale, if not for Michigan. It is rather late to do much of anything new so close to the battle with the Maize and the Blue, although it is expected that some of the crutches now on the hospital bed will be in line for the game against Ann Arbor men.

Brickley, Harvard's star halfback, has been out of the game since the first game of the season. It is probable that the Crimson would have played in the open, but for less than is now the case. As it is, Harvard returns to the backfield, and in its combination with Mahan, Bradlee, McKelick and one or two others, it is able to handle a much more sweeping type of play than has been necessary in some years.

Brickley combined very neatly, for Harvard's purpose, the ability to run at any time or in any place, and in his combination with Mahan, Bradlee, McKelick and one or two others, it is able to handle a much more sweeping type of play than has been necessary in some years.

Sewanee Trims Florida Eleven

Score Touchdown Against Tigers—4,000 Fans See the Game

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 24.—Florida University, although it used every play in its possession, was unable to score on Sewanee here today and was forced to take defeat before a crowd of 4,000 people, by the count of 26 to 0.

Sewanee, but a short time after the ball was kicked into their territory, carried the ball for consistent gains with but little interruption until the first touchdown was made. Debutant, a tackle over tackle play. He skipped through the line for a run of 45 yards, Fullback Rouhaek, for Sewanee, kicked the point.

The second touchdown was made by Quarterback Trevelyan, a few minutes later, on a play in which he carried 40 yards on the kick-off and he was allowed to get through the line in the open field. The play was made by him squarely between the goal posts.

A third touchdown was made by McKelick in the second quarter when, after a pass from the line, he carried 20 yards to the goal line. He was followed by a fourth touchdown when he carried 20 yards to the goal line. He was followed by a fourth touchdown when he carried 20 yards to the goal line.

Harvard Ties With Penn. State

Important Step In Baseball War

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 24.—Harvard narrowly escaped defeat today by the Penn. State college team, which played all around the Crimson. The score was a tie, 13 to 13. For forty years, Harvard has been the Harvard variety substitutes about the field, scoring a touchdown and a goal from the field in the first twelve minutes of play. The visitors scored two touchdowns for victories through two costly fumbles.

Penn. State rushed fifty-four times for 124 yards and a goal from the field. It was forced to take defeat before a crowd of 2,000, while Harvard made but two.

Minors' Meeting Important Step In Baseball War

Gathering Will Take Place in Omaha, Nov. 10-12—Unless Organized Forces Patch Up Truce With Federals, Several Small Leagues May Join Outlaws

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The annual meeting of the National Association of Minor Leagues will take place in Omaha on November 10, 11 and 12. This will be one of the most important gatherings in baseball this winter. From all over the United States and Canada managers will gather to talk of their hardships during the last year and to legislate for the coming season.

The controversy between organized ball players and the outlaws has been the big topic of conversation at that gathering. In fact, it will be no surprise to have most of the big league managers make the trip to Omaha to get the little fellows and to get the news direct from the men who are the most strenuous of the outlaws.

Diamond Stars Wintering Here

If Manager Bill Smith Could Line Up Material in City Now His Crackers Would Be Strong

The times are a bit out of joint to be talking of baseball here when King Football is supposed to be reigning supreme in the middle and those of us who are bachelors of the diamond are sojourning in the city just now, pandering the streets, you just can't help running back to the evange of the past season, or reaching forward a bit into the future.

For instance, you might be surprised to learn that Billy Smith would be mightily glad to open up next season with the roster of baseball players now in the city, as his entry for the Southern league flag. Well, the matter has not been put to rest, but only by the fact that he would like to have the right on the spot. There is only one position at which Bill would not be only a crack player, but a crack manager.

W. & J. Is Too Much for Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—Washington and Jefferson, eleven freshmen the first real surprise of the season here by defeating Yale today 13 to 7. The visitors outscored the Yale team in the first period and kept the Blue moving on the defensive for the remainder of the game. Washington and Jefferson's touchdowns were both scored by the same player, a fullback named Davidson. Davidson's frequent attempted forward passes were ineffective, and the first thirty-five-yard line in the game was a touchdown and goal by him in the last period. Davidson's first pass was a touchdown and goal by him in the last period. Davidson's first pass was a touchdown and goal by him in the last period.

Davidson Beats Citadel Bunch

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 24.—A hard fought contest, with both teams evenly matched, Davidson defeated the Citadel here this afternoon with a final score of 16 to 0. Davidson's first pass was a touchdown and goal by him in the last period. Davidson's first pass was a touchdown and goal by him in the last period. SQUAD OF MOGULS TURN FANS AGAINST BASEBALL

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The baseball public cannot kick on the action of the mob that occurred during the past season, and as a rule each incident was big. The quality of those actions is something to be proud of, and the mob is the mob. The quality of those actions is something to be proud of, and the mob is the mob. The quality of those actions is something to be proud of, and the mob is the mob.

There were outside causes to keep interest in the pastime down, but had these not occurred the public would have supported the game as in past years.

MINORS WEATHER STORM. Much has been said and done regarding the minor leagues and how hard they were hit during the season. However, the minor leagues are still going on, and in fact, it is hard to name off a single minor league which closed down before its schedule was completed.

The Union association, with teams in Salt Lake City, Butte, Mont., Helena, Great Falls, Ogden and Boise, was the most notable of these.

In speaking of the minors, the International league and the American association were mentioned. The latter league, which closed down before its schedule was completed, was the most notable of these.

looked by many as the cause of the apparent wave of popular sentiment which gave the mob its more support. This is easily explained. The organized powers are the defense while the third leaguers are the offense. Organized baseball has nothing to gain by going out and meeting the mob, while in order to break in, the outlaws must encroach on occupied territory. For this reason it appears to the general public as if organized ball was retreating. It is not. It is merely biding its time, as it must do, waiting for the mob to make the first move.

STRIKE CAN'T LAST LONG. The end of the strike is close at hand. It must be stopped before everyone concerned loses their all. This winter is the logical time to bring about negotiations for peace and unless both sides are more than they are given credit for next spring will see everything having nothing on the baseball map.

The biggest joke of the year and the most harmful to organized ball was the secret draft. The national commission fooled no one but itself. Of course the Peds were the cause, for it was with an idea of keeping valuable information secret from the public that the meeting was conducted behind closed doors. This secrecy was maintained all down the line.

Braves' Success Means Much to Young Players

Manager Stallings and John Evers Proved That Club Does Not Need Services of Experienced Stars to Win Pennant—Loafers Will Find Gird Hard in Future

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—The winning of the National league pennant and the world's series championship by the Boston Braves may be a blessing in disguise for the club owners. It has put a premium on the young players of moderate ability who are willing and eager to improve and lessened the value of the star with a temper.

Every National league and American league club is saddled with the contracts of several players which have two or three years to run. These contracts have no ten-day clauses in them, so that the players must be paid, no matter how good or how poor they play.

It was found last season that such contracts were a drawback as many of the players holding them lacked ambition after they were signed to such documents.

It was this more than any other which caused such listless playing by some of the teams. George Stallings and John Evers were smart enough to realize the conditions and to take advantage of them. Without such conditions, it is doubtful if the Braves could have made their wonderful start from last place to the lead in the National league.

Western Games Find Favor With Yale Followers

Supporters of Old Eli Are Pleased With General Effects of Last Saturday's Game With Notre Dame—Anticipate Annual Contests With Western Elites

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—Following Yale's defeat of Notre Dame last week by a score of 23 to 9, comes the news that the Eli athletic authorities are considering the advisability of scheduling at least one big game a year with a representative western elite.

The football advisers at Yale have sent out a confidential letter to Harvard, Princeton, and several other eastern schools, asking their opinion on the subject and their experiences in staging contests with western teams.

Chicago, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Illinois are understood to be the teams which Yale would consider for games.

With Harvard and Pennsylvania playing Michigan and with Princeton considering the advisability of taking on a strong western opponent, the Eli officials should not get behind the times.

There is something more than a desire to bring about a test between the east and west in the proposed undertaking, according to the alumni. There is the benefit of indirect advertising. With the growth of western football and the attention bestowed by western newspapers on their home teams, and a consequent curtailment in the amount of news devoted to eastern teams, alumni of some of the big eastern schools assert there is a tendency on the part of promising western preparatory school material to matriculate in a western college. Intercollegiate games would attract material to the eastern colleges, assert the alumni.

Pennsylvania and Cornell were pioneers in the western football field. Penn and Cornell still play the Ann Arbor eleven, with games alternating on the respective gridirons. Chicago also has met Cornell and Penn in the past, but now confines its games to conference colleges.

Unless Yale will agree to play return games with any conference eleven invited to go to New Haven, it is unlikely contests will take place. When Harvard offered Chicago a game for this fall, the reply of the faculty was that a trip to Cambridge would take the players away from their studies too long and that intercollegiate contests were not looked on with favor at present. The real reason is understood to be Harvard's unwillingness to promise a return game. Michigan later accepted the Harvard date.

Yale's letter to the other universities taken to mean that Yale and Harvard and Princeton probably would reach an agreement on the subject. Such tests held in the west would be a wonderful stimulus to western football, which is enjoying one of its prosperous seasons this fall.

Crowds Gather To Draw Space For Auto Shows

S. A. Pegram, Agent for the Haynes Car, Says New York and Chicago Shows This Winter Will Attract Largest Crowds in History

"The largest gathering of motor car builders in the history of the industry was present at the semi-annual convention of the National Automobile chamber of commerce in New York City on October 1, when drawings were held for space at the New York and Chicago automobile shows," states S. A. Pegram of the Pegram Motor Car Company, distributor in this territory for Haynes, America's first car, in a recent interview.

"The Haynes company drew space B-22 which covers 219 square feet, for their exhibit at the New York show which will again take place at the Grand Central palace, week of January 2 to 3, and for the Chicago show, which will be held at the coliseum, the company drew space H. L. which covers 224 square feet."

"Last January at the Chicago show, the Haynes company sold more cars than all the previous shows held in the Windy City combined; but with the popularity of the Haynes 'Light Six' it is predicted that all Haynes records for cars sold at similar events will be shattered. It is stated that there will be approximately 350 exhibitors at the New York and Chicago events, a figure number, but will exhibit passenger cars, while the balance will exhibit accessories and products of allied trades that enter into the making of the modern motor car."

"S. A. Miles, manager of the shows, reported that applications for the fifth annual exhibitions exceeded number those for any previous affairs of the kind, it being impossible to provide for seven of the car applications received for the Chicago show."

"There was much gratification among the makers over the eminently fair action of the senate committee at Washington in recommending the importance of the industry as evidenced by their decision not to place a tax on the motor cars, which are already so heavily taxed throughout the country, including registration fees, taxes to operate vehicles, personal property tax, and in the case of North Carolina, $100 license fee to sell cars in this state."

"The drawing showed that the past year the number of manufacturers, the cars represented at the drawing being old timers in the field. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Haynes company participated in the fourteen annual exhibitions held in New York and Chicago—a record that can be duplicated by very few of the present day manufacturers."

Hannes Kohnleimann is back in America proving that the car can't survive the bad magic while the running is good."

Maxwell Finds Business Good

Reports which have been coming in to the office of the Maxwell Motor Company in Detroit, from Maxwell dealers and representatives in the middle west, about the crops to be good and general conditions much better than anticipated.

"The corn crop in Kansas is good," writes A. B. Cogswell, Maxwell dealer in Kirwin, Kan., "and the farmers are buying automobiles more than ever before. We have had great success thus far and the much talked of financial depression which we hear about certainly hasn't come to Kansas. Our business is fine and the new model Maxwell is selling like wild fire."

Tigers Train at Gulfport Again

GULFPORT, Miss., Oct. 24.—The Detroit Tigers will train here for one more year at least.

This was the announcement just made by Manager Jimmie Lynch, of the Great Southern hotel, upon receipt of a telegram from President Frank Navin, of the Detroit club, stating that, after considering the claims of several other localities with sites to offer, he had decided that Gulfport offered a better location, better facilities for training the athletes than any other.

The announcement was received with keen satisfaction here for the members of the Detroit club made themselves very popular during their stay last spring.

The team will report here about February 20 and will remain until just before the opening of the American league season.

It is thought here that the decision of President Navin to return was hastened by the fact that the St. Louis Cardinals have been "dickering" for the location should the Tigers decide not to come. The splendid training grounds and beautiful field were built by the Great Southern Hotel company last season for the use of visiting teams and are considered to be as good as any in the south. Manager Lynch was responsible for the building of the excellent park, and as he is well known in the baseball community from coast to coast, has been a favorite locality among baseball managers as spring headquarters.

That "wopkin neck" that afflicts leaders is nothing compared with the "hinky neck" acquired by Notre Dame players looking for the ball.

Racing Stars in Endurance Run

Ralph De Palma and Joe Dawson Compete Successfully in Chicago Test Race

Ralph De Palma and Joe Dawson, racing stars of the first magnitude, added to their laurels by their victory last week, by finishing with perfect scores in the annual contest between the Chicago Automobile club and the Chicago Athletic association.

Both race drivers belied their reputation for hard driving by keeping within the twenty-mile-per-hour limit prescribed by the pacemaker, and crossed the finish line at George Ade's farm at Brook, Ind., without a discredit.

De Palma recently purchased a Chandler Six from the New York City dealer and drove the car to Chicago to participate in the contest. He was so enthusiastic over the car's performance that he wired his congratulations to the Cleveland office of the Chandler company at the conclusion of the run.

Over 250 motorists partook of George Ade's hospitality at the farm, plunging through many miles of muddy roads for the occasion. With the exception of an hour during luncheon, rain fell continuously, but the weather failed to dampen the spirits of the contestants who are already planning a similar trip for next year.

Newman High Beats Aggies' Eleven

NEWMAN, Ga., Oct. 24.—In a misty rain, which looked as if it would turn into a downpour, the Newman High school team defeated the strong Fourth District A. and M. college Friday afternoon, for the second time this season. The final score was 12 to 0. Newman's line held magnificently against the fierce charges of the aggie and the A. and M. boys were unable to gain.

The features of the game were the line plunges of Peniston and Carpenter and the end running of Camp and Powell, also the strong work of Fry at center. Arnold replaced Mattox at the end of the third quarter and played well. Harten featured for the aggie and sustained painful injuries in the third quarter while trying to stop an end run by Camp.

Judging from the demonstration indulged in by 1,500 Notre Dame students welcoming their football team back from New Haven after a 28 to 0 defeat by the Irish last Saturday, it is safe to say that Notre Dame won the game.

SANTA CLAUS WILL BE HERE, WAR OR NO WAR

Times Never Get Too Hard for Children's Patron Saint to Travel

"Santa Claus says that the European war will in no wise affect the visit he makes annually December 24," said Mr. J. F. Lewis, of the Hirschberg company, who has made arrangements with our company early in the year to supply him with the many thousands of dolls, trains, fire engines, doll cars, pianos, trunks, wagons, watches and thousands of other pretty things that will please the children. He now insists since the bad weather that at least one merchant in every town should put in a good stock of holiday goods so he may get his goods nearer home. If they will put this line in early, he will stop early as the many roads he will have to travel in order to get his goods together are rough. "Santa says he has been through wars and rumors of wars, has witnessed famine in the land, corn rotting for 5 cents, but he has never given up. When all vegetation was killed, in fact, he has been here for ages, and makes the proud assertion that he has never seen times so hard that he would not spend the last cent he had to make someone happy on Christmas. He says the low price of cotton will not affect him in the least. If it is necessary he will sell corn or a cow and calf. If he had no children ever, one should have a present. "Santa Claus is not a man who likes to hear for things, but he knows the desires of the people and would like to see them supplied with the many things they want for Christmas. He insists that the merchants in the small towns arrange to supply him with these things. Of course, Santa knows what he is talking about, and the merchant has to take back and waste will be where Moses was when the light went out."

MORE GRAIN DRILL SALES MEAN DIVERSIFIED CROPS

"Our sales of grain drills still continue to be large," said W. T. Bell, of the John Deere Plow company. "A steady demand for these implements indicates that the farmers throughout the territory which we sell are going in for diversified crops. It is apparent that they are going to plant more corn, hay and food stuffs than ever before, and will not be caught by any demoralization of the cotton market next year due to a war."

"What the Home Market Means to the Citizen"

That's the heading of a good sensible editorial that appeared in an Atlanta paper the past week.

We quote from this editorial--it's wholesome reading: "If every man in Atlanta bought everything he wore and everything he used in Atlanta; if every woman bought everything she wore in Atlanta--her clothes, every accessory of her toilet; if every child living in Atlanta had its clothes bought here; if every home in Atlanta were furnished throughout with the products of Atlanta shops; if all the foodstuffs consumed in Atlanta were bought in the Atlanta markets--

"THEN ATLANTA WOULD BE THE MOST PROSPEROUS CITY IN THE COUNTRY EVEN IN WAR TIMES."

"What makes Atlanta prosperous makes every individual man prosperous. You make your money here, out of Atlanta people and Atlanta enterprise--then why does any man, woman or child feel called upon to buy anything outside of Atlanta?"

We are much pleased to see--and FEEL--the impulse that is being given to the BUY-AT-HOME movement.

The newspapers, the women-folks, the clubs, the boards of trade, the schools--they're all talking about it.

All this helps. It is encouraging. It's tonic.

But we respectfully submit that sentiment is insufficient. What must happen is ACTION if we are to have the benefit of all the happy plans that are proposed.

The public must be led right up to the buying-point after all the necessary sentiment has been created. Actual connection must be made between the intention and the deed.

Here's what we mean:

The consumer gets the BUY-WHAT'S-MADE-IN-ATLANTA germ and goes to the grocery store or the dry goods store or the shoe store.

He calls for the ATLANTA brand.

Whereupon the dry-goodser or the grocer or the shoe man ups and announces that he doesn't "happen to have that particular brand--but here's something else just as good; in fact--"

UGH?

Why will some merchants stand in their own light that way?

Isn't it surprising?

Merchants of ATLANTA and GEORGIA, don't make the mistake of withholding your co-operation in this Big Movement for HOME-MADE GOODS. Don't block the game. Don't be short-sighted.

The advantage to the merchant in buying HOME-MANUFACTURED goods is very great. He gets the best end of it, decidedly.

The demand for our stuff is being built up every day through appeals both to the patriotism and the pocket-book of the consumer. The missionary work that is now doing is going to bring a big harvest of returns.

It will PAY you, Merchants, to be there with the goods when the going gets steady. And we are telling you cold facts when we announce that the said going is improving every day that comes.

We'd like to talk with any merchant who is of the doubting-Thomas order on this proposition. If you've got any questions to ask or if there's anything you'd like to be shown on the subject of BUYING-OUR-GOODS, let us hear from you.

A personal inspection of our factories will be, we believe, a revelation and a pleasure to you. Seeing is believing--and we're after converts.

Write us a letter or come to see us.

ATLANTA CHILDREN WHOSE PICTURES WILL BE SHOWN AT THE PANAMA EXPOSITION

PHOTOGRAPHS of twenty-five Atlanta children will be hung in the Temple of Childhood at the San Francisco exposition, where, for the first time in history, pictures of the most beautiful children in the world will be gathered.

This temple will commemorate the beauty of childhood, and will draw its chief attraction from the gallery of beautiful pictures, in which photographs of twenty-five Atlanta children will have prominent place.

Lewis D. Phillips, of Wesley Hirschburg & Lewis D. Phillips, commissioned to make photographs in Atlanta for the Temple of Childhood, has completed the pictures printed here.

He has endeavored to render his work perfect photography, with the result that accompanying photographs are among Atlanta's most beautiful pictures of children.

Each of the eight represents the highest type of childhood, and all make up a gallery of innocent beauty that is without rival.

The Temple of Childhood at the San Francisco exposition will assemble not only pictures of beautiful children in America, but from all the world. It will be devoted to child life. There children's welfare, hygiene and decoration will be illustrated in greater detail than ever before attempted. A contest also will be held to determine the most beautiful child in the world. In this contest the twenty-five children representing Atlanta will be considered.

Each of the children representing Atlanta will be presented with a certificate from the Temple of Childhood, which will read:

"Whereas, the opening of the Panama canal will be celebrated at San Francisco, 1915, and such celebration, in close accord with international sentiment, will express the gratification of the countries of the world upon America's gift to civilization, and at the same time will be a potent factor in bringing the nations into closer relationship, and

"Whereas, the untold benefits to be derived from the operation of the Panama canal will accrue in the future to the children of today, and

"Whereas, the child life of the world will be fittingly represented at this exposition in and by the Temple of Childhood, it is the desire and hope of the United States and the countries of the world that official recognition and honor should be accorded to the children of the period by the exhibition of portraits characteristic of the child life of the world; therefore

"Be it known that (name of child to be inserted) is hereby accorded representation in the Temple of Childhood as a selected example of the child life of the state of Georgia."

Six-Year-Old Actors Of Atlanta Public Schools—Histrionic Art Replaces A. B. C's.

By Angus Perkinson

WE are making actors of school children. A visitor last week to the second grade, Ivy Street school, would have seen "The Cave People."

One little boy was Old Saber Tooth, the Tiger. Other little boys were the hunters. All the little girls were the women of the tribe, and prepared the skin after the fearful tiger was slain.

But, remember, this was not play. This was study. Atlanta children, by a new method, were learning history.

Over a table were raincoats which hung down till they formed a cave, and in its dark recesses tossed and growled Old Saber Tooth. For a tiger only seven years old, just beginning to feel at ease in the multiplication tables, he growled wonderfully.

Outside paused the hunters. They were almost afraid of the monster who hid in the cave, and the little girls were dressing his skin, while the little boys sought other games.

A Miracle Wrought. Such study seems too interesting to be serious. What would a teacher of the old blue-backed speller think? The nation! Letting children act their history lesson!

Yet this method has made over America's school system. The determination to render school vitally interesting instead of eternally boring has worked a miracle.

Atlanta schools are no more now what they were last October than day is night. They have become something new, interesting, stimulating.

Double sessions have taken up such thought that none seems to have realized the change in study. But it has been Atlanta's greatest effort in education.

First, children dramatize what they study. Wherever possible, they actually do the thing they read in books.

Secondly, they study the things around them—the home, Atlanta, crops of this section.

Thirdly, their books have replaced reading with interest. The little ones read Mother Goose rhymes, and the older ones, historic tales that satisfy a longing for adventure.

Every effort is made to render study in the Atlanta schools interesting, definite and useful. All study has been made concrete, nothing is abstract, and whatever is theoretical and without practical application has been abandoned.

How They Learn. In the first grade they no longer are taught A B C's. They begin with their Mother Goose primer; they learn sentences by rote, above all, they set what they hear.

It really is true that the power to get meaning from curly-cues on printed pages comes to them unconsciously.

They grow so immersed in the fate of Little Bo Peep and the adventures of Little Miss Muffet that the meaning in the books just comes to them.

If you had been told when your training began, of interesting personages instead of perplexing letters, and had spent hours "acting" our impressions of these individuals, wouldn't your opposition to learning to read have disappeared?

In addition to more reading and writing, Little Miss Muffet and the adventures of Little Miss Muffet that the meaning in the books just comes to them.

Now, as to history. And they are studying Indians. They are learning their histories by acting their lessons. All last week Indian scenes were being enacted in every first grade in Atlanta.

The theory is that nothing impresses a thing on the mind so much as doing it. If you can see a picture of the scene or the thought, that makes it vivid. But if you can give your own representation of the character or the events, that fixes them in the mind.

But beyond the gaining of actual knowledge and impressions, Atlanta school children are developing originality and expression. They are getting rid of that repression that fixes itself on nine out of ten people.

Of course, all this while, reading and spelling and number work go on as much as ever. But the effort is made to have them all grow out of familiar things. For instance, the number work is associated with the homes the children are studying.

You see, that makes it definite. Now, in the second grade we come to the history of the cave men, and find caves being made under tables, and little boys changing into tigers and hunters, and little girls becoming cave women.

History of Atlanta. At the same school where Old Saber Tooth was slain, children are carried their studies even into the recess period. They have made a cave in the yard, and, even when class is interrupted, they go on being cave folk.

That proves the worth of Atlanta's new system. It holds such intense interest for children that study becomes play. Did you, in your school days, linger over studies? In the third grade they read historic journeys, which have, in a wholesome way, the adventure craved by children of that age. And, after Christmas they are to study the history and the geography of Atlanta.

Heretofore, children have studied anything but the city in which they live. Now they are to learn the complete history of Atlanta from 1880 to this day.

They are to learn how the city is governed, what paving we use, that pupils were to attend college, but this has not proved true of one in a hundred. Then, why should they have preparation for future study never undertaken? By making study more and more industrial this question has been answered.

But what has been accomplished is only part of what is to be done.

Atlanta schools have been made over. But even greater changes are in mind.

What has been done was directed largely by Miss Laura M. Smith, primary supervisor, who has prepared a manual by which the work of the first three grades has been revised.

what is the best paying—in every detail, they are to be trained, as far as possible, for intelligent citizens. They are to study the crops of the surrounding country—cotton and corn and fruit trees.

THE FISHER MODEL FOR 1915

HARRISON FISHER, in 1915, will draw the southern type of beauty.

He will not, of course, confine himself to one ideal of face or feature. That would rob his work of variety, which is one of its greatest charms.

But in most of his illustrations the delicate features which are purely southern, will predominate. Yet his 1915 girl will be vivacious. His model will combine the grace and pliancy that are characteristic of beauty in Atlanta.

The charm which is found here will be the chief attraction in Mr. Fisher's illustrations next year. In fact, many of his delicate magazine drawings, which are exquisite expressions of beauty, will be close likenesses of some Atlanta debutantes. These drawings might almost be taken for portraits.

Actual photographs will play a part in getting this resemblance. Mr. Fisher has assembled a collection which represents the most perfect in southern beauty, and while he will depend chiefly on living models, these photographs will aid him. And among them will be photographs from Atlanta!

Mr. Fisher has spent much time this year in the west, and rumor was that Miss Margaret Abercrombie, of San Francisco, would be the type predominating in his drawings for 1915. But his heart is set on beauty of another sort.

His Ideal. One day on a trip to Florida he went fishing, and there met the type of loveliness that is to make attractive the magazines next year. As he tells it, he had reached a little house among the pines, and by the gates at the roadside stood a girl who seemed to embody the best in southern beauty.

"While she wore a 10-cent hat," said Mr. Fisher, "and a cotton dress that couldn't have cost more than a dollar, she was enchanting. I think she was the most beautiful woman I ever saw."

"I looked up her mother, and told her if she would bring her daughter to New York to pose for me, I would pay her $40 a week. But the mother refused. She said such a sum of money would be a fortune to them, but posing for pictures was not an occupation for her daughter."

"I think the dignity of the mother was as beautiful as the nose and eyes of the daughter."

Mr. Fisher, who lives in New York, last week gave to The Journal an interview through Nikola Greeley-Smith, magazine and newspaper writer, in which he expresses intensely interesting opinions of the styles of beauty in 1915.

This interview follows: "I found him," writes Miss Smith, "in his wonderful studio overlooking Bryant park in the midst of a bewildering harem of pretty girl pictures, all his own creation. While we discussed the points of his 1915 beauty I asked him to let me have some sketches of her for the readers of The Journal and he was kind enough to do so."

1915 A Piquant Beauty. "...I should say," began the famous illustrator, with the modest diffidence his great success has not diminished, "that the Fisher girl of 1915 is charming and piquant rather than classically beautiful. She is not the dull doll type. She has wavy, carelessly arranged hair, often blonde than dark, though I shall do some brunettes and some girls with red hair, also. If I can find a model to suit me—she must have copper and not carrot hair."

"The 1915 girl must have a broad low brow and arched eyebrows with the right eyebrow a little heavier than the left. You know a slight difference in the eyebrows gives much more character to beauty—a little saucy nose that lifts a little, and beautiful cut nostrils—that girl in Florida had marvelous nostrils. Her brows must be slightly puckered in a puzzled frown, while her full red mouth is smiling. She is wondering what life is all about anyway, but is smiling at it just the same. Her face is broad at the base, but has a pointed chin like that girl over there."

"I looked in the direction Mr. Fisher indicated and saw a water color of a very young girl with ash blonde hair and long dreamy gray eyes."

"Starting from the two swallows in full flight that constituted her eyebrows, a line drawn through them and following the outline of cheeks and chin made a perfect heart."

"That 1915 girl has a face the shape of a heart," I remarked to her creator.

"Yes," Mr. Fisher answered "her face is a perfect heart and it is very attractive. That little girl worked in a box factory for nothing at all week till she became a model a few months ago. She is only seventeen years of age now."

"The 1915 girl has long slanting eyes, which show the whites very little," the artist continued. "She must be moderately tall and should weigh about 125 pounds. These smiling skeletons you see running around with their lips open showing through their clothes are not beautiful from my standpoint. A girl must not be fat, but all her bones should be covered and she should have a beautiful neck and shoulders."

Fashion Is Returning to Hoop Skirts

We are slowly but surely going back to the old-fashioned hoop skirts. The new "cape" skirts are circular in form and at least four yards around the bottom. Some of these are formed by godets which run up to the hip and others have the fullness only at the sides from a wide yoke.

Of necessity these skirts are very short. Some of them being eight and ten inches from the ground. Far will be very much worn this winter. And a black velvet skirt trimmed with Martin or monkey fur, if you can afford it, will put you in the foremost brigade of fashion.

A white broadcloth gown with rose of graduated black velvet ribbon brings a decided remembrance of great-grandmother's time. A black velvet sash on this gown, with a soft chiffon blouse makes a very picturesque costume.

Up to date, under all the wide skirts there is always a narrow one, but one can safely promise that this will be dispensed with before the winter is over.

As is the case with wide short skirts, high French heels will be the only kind worn.

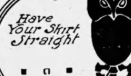

The athletic girl can no longer wear "slinkers."

up about my throat, I have frequently resorted to this device of a draw ribbon about the bottom of the veil which keeps me 'spick and span' inside. Then there should always be another pin, besides the one at the neck, at the back just at the edge of the hat brim. This keeps the veil from coming back from nape of neck to hat brim."

The milliner impressed upon me, too, that it was always well to have different veils for different sized hats, not wearing the veil intended for a large brim on a toque and being compelled to dispose of long, unsightly ends.

The Turkish bath is not only much cleaner than the ordinary cloth shower, but may be developed by running water into a series of compartments, and turning it into a sort of bag to slip on the hands.

In going from place to place at different times of the day, one can easily perceive how lacking are many bath-rooms in articles which to me seem almost essential. The Turkish bath, however, may be taken as a matter of course, but the bath mat is by no means inevitable and neither are Turkish towels. When one has a Turkish bath, one may as well have a Turkish towel. In fact, it seems odd that every housekeeper should not supply herself with a sufficient quantity of Turkish towels, and perfume the bath as well as give it a tonic quality, not especially cheap, but the sea salt, which is the best, and the sea salt and is of a great help to those who feel the need of gaining strength as well as cleanliness from the bath. If the bath is a hot box of baking soda at hand and a little of this will soften the water and make it more cleansing.

A friend told me not long ago of the benefit she had derived from using Turkish towels. She said that she had been nothing more than an ordinary Turkish towel dipped into a strong brine and squeezed out. She said that she had used it and it was a great help to her. The salt dried in it and after the bath had removed the moisture from her skin and she was left with a very soft skin, hard with the friction towel and had been the salt of sanitation. It was worth trying.

In this stage of our early civilization it may seem superfluous to dwell upon the necessity of each member of the family having a Turkish towel. But I have known families where there was a cheerful difference on this point; and I have known families where the brothers would use the same towels and the headlessness of children upon these

If he can have his own bath mat, so much the better.

It is little trouble to teach a child which are the nalla or hooks which belong especially to him, to instruct him to use the articles which hang there, and those which he is told he will not use. It is in some ways to impress this upon him than upon some of his seniors. Begin with the young and give them the habit of this form of exclusiveness as well as of the daily and thorough bath—in hot water.

I would like a recipe for a good home made grape wine-not grape juice. I would like to make it. "F. C."

Pick ripe grapes from the stems and crush them in a wooden bowl. Put them in a cider press when you have a large quantity, but if only a few are used you can crush them in a mortar or a bottle or in a vegetable press. Strain the juice through a bag, pressing it to get out the liquid, and to each quart of this allow one quart of water. Put into a jar with a clean jar or cask to ferment, covering the top or the bung-hole with a piece of clean cloth. Put in a little yeast and sugar should ferment together for three weeks, or until it is clear and still, when it can be poured off into bottles and turned into bottles. These must be corked and sealed and laid on the sides in a cool place.

Thank you very much. It is my desire for the purpose of stating that two or three extra copies of the poem are in my possession. I am glad to send them to anyone who wishes to have them. I have also the verses, including a stamp. There is no charge for the same except postage which was asked for a while ago and that begins. IN THE TEMPLES OF THE BRAHMINS

A Plea To Atlanta For The "Little" Widows Of India.

By Angus Perskerson

TEMPLES appear like shadows. Voices rise in a faint chant. On the ear breaks softly the murmur of the Ganges. From the shadows rise faces—faces of children.

Louder grows the chanting. The song of the holy river dies. Priests in robes gather. From childish lips comes a cry.

In the shadows appear wide eyes. White walls stand forth. Men in robes slip past. Then, from the darkness, distinct, sharp, start the faces of children.

A Hindu woman last week drew this picture for Atlanta women. To force on them a story that seems impossible, she chose the short, broken sentences.

Her name is Mrs. S. Banerjee, and she landed in New York three months ago from Calcutta to appeal to America on behalf of the women of India.

No fantastic or exaggerated touch has been given the following interview with her. Simply, her words have been set down.

But that simple utterance is that twenty-eight million women are imprisoned in temples in India, with Brahmin priests for jailers.

They are punished because of the natural death of their husbands. For a Hindu woman to become a widow, in India, is a curse.

Ten years ago the "suttee," a horrible religious death, was the fate of such a guilty wife. But England stopped that.

These are buildings, withdrawn from the villages, dot the somber land, and within are suffering women, few more than children in age.

At the story strikes sharpest in the words of the Hindu woman.

Mrs. Banerjee as quietly as a casual visitor arrived in Atlanta last week, chose the Terminal hotel to avoid newspapers, and assumed a fictitious name.

While she is to appeal to the women of Atlanta, she at first avoided public notice.

At the hotel they doubted she would see strangers. They didn't know—

When I was discovered in a sitting room where the light made her brown skin darker.

Her dress was loose and white, and over her head fell white cloth half serving for a veil. She gave her name, her age, which is thirty-five, then began. Her voice was low and soft, and in it there was the music, the dreaminess of the east, and in her speech a power beyond her actual words.

It was as though a figure from Kipling had been evoked and was speaking.

"When I was fifteen," she was saying, "I had been married five years to a high caste Hindu. The day I was fifteen I found myself and my two children in a stretch of jungle that was actual wilderness, 500 miles from Calcutta."

Mrs. S. Banerjee, Who Says 28 Million Women Are Imprisoned In Temples In India

ferred and forgave—but I will tell you of that later.

"By the edge of the Ganges I found this man who took me back to my father. But not to my father's house. The Brahmins said, since I had unveiled my face, I had lost caste and must never set foot across the threshold of a believer."

"But I had an uncle who did not believe, and he took me to his house. I tell you that because it marks a stage in my life. He had in his house a picture of the Crucifixion. He was not a Christian. He believed nothing. But he had the picture. And it was that picture that had seen in my dreams. Then, it had said to me to have no faith in idols, but to live in the goodness of man, and in her speech a power beyond her actual words."

"I had been left there to die because my two children were girls. I had not given birth to a boy. My husband had waited five years. Then he came to me to be left in the wilderness."

"Such things often happen in India. My own father was high caste. It was of well-to-do people. But when I count for nothing there. It wasn't at all strange that I had been left to die. Just to die is something easy in India."

"But I didn't want sleep and rest. I preferred life. With the children I walked to a village. There I found a party of pilgrims setting out for the Ganges. It is a holy river that washes away your sins, and there are many sins in India."

Fingers of God. "I went with them, because I thought at the river bank I might find people of my father's house. On the banks of the Ganges you meet all the world. India thinks the touch of the water is like the touch of the fingers of God."

"I found a friend of my father's, as I knew I would. Always I have a sort of foreknowledge. Even in my dreams, before I knew the meaning of Christianity, I saw a face that suffered and forgave—but I will tell you of that later.

Real Story of How Atlanta Got Its Name

By Gordon Noel Hurtel

MUCH has been written about the naming of Atlanta, but most of these stories are at variance with history. Recently a writer in an Atlanta newspaper undertook to tell how Atlanta was named, and, as usual, did not give the facts.

Atlanta has had three names. In 1837 when Stephen H. Long surveyed the right of way for a state railroad, the little settlement was a village in the woods. The stake marking the terminus of the road was driven near the present Union passenger station, and, by common consent, the village was called "Terminus."

In 1843 it was decided to honor Governor William Lumpkin, then on a visit to Terminus, by naming the town for his daughter, Martha. By an act of the state legislature on December 23 of that year, the town was chartered as Mariettaville, and it was governed by a board of town commissioners and the pioneers were the town fathers. The town was named after the daughter of the governor, and the town was named after the daughter of the governor.

In 1847 the town had no grown and prospered that a new name was deemed advisable. Having been twice named it was something of a puzzle to find a third one that would last.

After various names had been canvassed it was decided to adopt the suggestion of J. Edgar Thompson, chief engineer of the Georgia railroad, who named the town Atlanta.

The name, as Mr. Thompson stated, was the Latin feminine of Atlantic, which was a part of the name of the state railroad which had been called the Western and Atlantic. The city of Atlanta was chartered by the state in 1848.

As stated, many erroneous stories of the naming of Atlanta have been published and are still being published, but the above are the historical facts.

The Pioneer Calaboose. Even the last regulated of cities must have a calaboose. They call such a place these days "police headquarters," "barracks," "station house," etc., but way back in Atlanta's history the lock-up was known as the calaboose.

Atlanta's pioneer calaboose was a one-room log cabin, located on the west side of Pryor, near Alabama street. There was a high embankment on the lot at that time and the rude prison was built on the edge of the embankment. The floor was of heavy slabs, which were not nailed down. It was a favorite trick with the boys about town when they had been locked up to remove the slabs and escape.

The marshal at that time was German M. Lester. He was said to be a brave and fearless man, though kind and gentle. He was the only police officer in the town at that time. On one occasion, it is related, one of the younger boys who had been locked up in the calaboose, took a bunch of firecrackers to his tail and set them off. The marshal was giving a lecture at the time and the discourse was suddenly arrested when the pony ran away.

The key of the historical prison still is in the possession of Marshal Lester's descendants in Atlanta. It is a huge affair, made of solid brass and weighs a quarter of a pound.

All the old inhabitants were of the opinion that it was no easy job to police Atlanta in those days, for, although the town was small in size, it was a huge affair, made of solid brass and weighs a quarter of a pound.

MAGIC KEYS

How They Have Saved Fortunes And Rescued Imprisoned Atlantians

Tom Jones and His Wonder-working Keys.

By Ward Greene

In a cubby hole ten feet below the surface of 161 North Forsyth street lives the man who has a key to every lock in Atlanta.

There he has his bed, there he eats his meals, there he goes to work. He has been locked up and locked out for so long that from Monday morning to Saturday midnight, he has his wife and children only once.

For he must be there, on the job when Atlanta rushes to him to have himself freed from her jammed automobile door, or to have her safe opened or her doors unlocked or her obstinate window latches pried back.

As he sits and tinkers with 8,000 keys around him, all he can see of Atlanta as she passes by, are feet. A glance at the entrance to his workshop reveals a narrow stretch of sidewalk. There, all day and sometimes far into the night, he sees feet of all kinds—feet in pumps, shoes, and shoes with scuffed toes and roundish heels; shoes that tramp pigeon-toed and shoes that spread like fans; shoes with flat soles and shoes with dainty, arched feet.

But there is no up-side-down sort of view of humanity. The outside world comes to him from below, and he gets first impressions by the quality of leather a visitor wears. The world appears in the order of feet, legs, stomach, and last of all, a head and a face: it departs, head, shoulders back and feet first, and he is left with the impression of a head and a face.

street the other night, fondling in his strong hands an ancient keyless lock which he prizes for the craftsmanship which made it, he told some of his adventures.

"There was an old lady on Spring street once," he said. "Her daughter had left her in the house all alone, and because of burglars, she had locked herself in her room upstairs, for she was an old lady and afraid."

"And—being an old lady—she got how to unlock herself. There her daughter found her when she came home. The key was on the inside, but the old lady couldn't turn it. Her daughter was outside, and couldn't get in to turn the key. So they called me up."

"Yes—I got her out. It was easy. I just pushed the inside key out, and inserted one of the eight thousand. It did the trick. She had been in there nearly eight hours, and was 'most scared to death. You see, the only way she could have gotten out, was by climbing through the window and shining down a twenty-foot banister. But—she was an old lady."

"Pinched for Burglary." He pressed a knob on the keyless lock and explained one of its forty different combinations. And—

"It was down on Ivy street one night, I was called. The agent had finished all but three doors, one in the front and one in the back and one in the middle of the second house. It must have been the family pet, shining down a twenty-foot banister. But—she was an old lady."

"O please, Mr. Jones, come let me out," she says. "I've jumped my door, and while I can drive all over town, I can't get out unless a climb out the window. And of course, I can't do that."

"There that girl is locked fast in her automobile. She won't go anywhere she wants to but out. So I work at the door until she is free again."

"Lots of times I've worked on electric doors for hours. Lots of times I've had a long time of society lady just waiting for me to get her free. And Tom Jones grins a healthy grin."

He stopped twisting the lock her enough to give a story that would serve well as a plot for a melodrama of the Jimmie Valentine type.

One morning his telephone rang. A real estate man told him in excited tones that it was up to him, Tom Jones, to save him a small fortune.

It seems that the agent had said that day for the signing of papers in a $50,000 stock deal. His parties were even then on the scene. One of them—the one who was most ready to back out of the deal—was simply had to catch a train at noon, and deal or no deal.

And the terrible part of it was that the agent had locked up the papers in his safe. Then he had gone home and on the way, lost his whole bunch of keys. There was no one else at the parties to the deal, the lawyer and all, locked outside of the building from the papers.

Away went Tom Jones with his 8,000 keys. By 10 o'clock he had pried the outside door to the street; by 10:30 he had unlocked the door to the office; by 10:45, worst of all, he had unlocked the door to the office. By 11:05 he had unlocked the door to the office.

At 11 o'clock, the lawyer came to the deal was looking at his watch. The lawyer was biting his lips. The agent was tearing his hair. Tom Jones was sweating.

By 11:10 he had solved the secret of the treasure box. By 11:15 he had opened three private drawers in the safe. By 11:20 he had unlocked the papers. By 11:30 the deal was completed, and the backward party was breaking all speed records to the station.

"And I got $25 and a new $500 suit out of that job," said Jones. He explained some of his locks, the workings, the balls, pins and coils of springs, how the pins must be fitted to the thousandth fraction of an inch in order that the key will turn. He showed him the keys and keys in the world, all different; how new locks are apparently new and how he, Tom Jones, master them.

Thief of the Female. He handed down twenty keys from a table. Here, he said, were fifty Yale keys, and every one of them different. And they were selected just at random.

"It's funny about ladies," he said. "they're so economical. I'll go out to a house and make a lady a key. She watches me closely until she thinks she's learned how. Then—as soon as she's learned she'll get her a key and some blanks, and begin to make her own keys for the rest of the house."

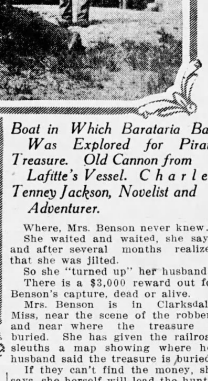

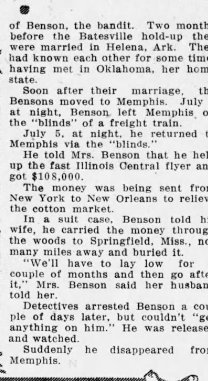

"And nearly always, she can't find them just right, and they won't fit. They get caught in the lock, the lady fumes and fusses, takes the screws out of the lock, pushes it back and splits thirty-six parts on the floor. Then she calls me up and there's a good job. I've got 'em all ways willing for the ladies to make their own keys!"

"It's a hard work—the locksmith's trade. The hours are long, the verifications many, the care taken must be great. There's a lot of money in it, and one must ever maintain a vigil for dishonest people who would get keys to their locks."

"One funny thing is—the locksmiths come to me. Lots of times I'm sitting here in my shop, when I hear some one knocking at my door. There's some lady sitting up in her electric crying to me through a window."

Pirate Treasure.

Hundreds have been searching for years in and around Barataria but for traces of the buried treasure of Pirate Jean Lafitte.

Only six months ago, Frederic Madison of La Follette Magazine, of Madison, Wis., and novelist, Charles Tenney Jackson went on a hunt for the pirate fortune. A map had been given them by an old French trapper who lived for years in the swampy region and who was credited with having been a descendant of member of Lafitte's band.

They found brass and copper cans and a tumbled-down brick and stone cave, showing that Lafitte's treasure probably buried the treasure there.

Expeditions almost every week start out from Abbeville, La., and other small southwest Louisiana towns on the treasure hunt.

All are convinced that the treasure is there somewhere. Even the residents of the Barataria region keep up a hunt, year after year.

Some day a lucky person will stumble on the buried fortunes of Mississippi, Georgia and Louisiana.

Poor tonight, rich as a king tomorrow.

Is it worth the hunt, this treasure?

And every resident of Seattle, no matter how far out in the suburbs, can obtain electric power for 6 cents a kilowatt hour for residence purposes, at a rate much cheaper in the downtown district.

But the city plant does not furnish all the juice in Seattle. It has, however, forced the competing Seattle Electric company to come down its rates. When the private company was able to charge 12 cents a kilowatt hour, the city rates doubled what they are now and in districts outside of Seattle the private company still charges 12 cents a kilowatt hour. When Ross became superintendent, the city and electric rates had been reduced to 8 cents in Seattle. In less than two years, the city plant was able to bring the rates down as the city made the cut, the electric company had to follow suit or lose out completely.

By Bishop W. A. Candler

WHEN Tennyson was writing "Locksley Hall" he seems to have been possessed by a sort of prophetic spirit. It was then he wrote the oft-quoted lines:

"Far along the world-wide whisper of the south wind rushing warm,
With the standards of the peoples plunging thro' the thunder storm;
Till the war drum throbbed no longer, and the battle flags were furled,
In the Parliament of man, the federation of world,
There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe,
And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapped in universal law."

In the last two of these lines he points out the power of a world-wide public opinion to hold fretful realms now passed away. In the present crisis every European power engaged has felt it necessary to be supported by a united public opinion at home and desirable to be approved by the public opinion of other nations also. The governments of England, Germany, Russia and France have been careful to publish the diplomatic correspondents who were led up to the present crisis with the evident purpose of convincing mankind of the righteousness of the causes for which they have unsheathed the sword. Whether they all have spoken frankly and truthfully does not matter; they have all showed respect for the public opinion of the world. None of them has dared to take up arms without seeking the approval of mankind. Daily their diplomatic agencies issue statements designed to win public favour for their respective governments.

In these things there is a striking

Illustration of the power of moral truth in the matter of international relations and conditions. The nations of the world have been known to ancient nations never did, and they judge each other in a court of public opinion which the most powerful governments dare not despise. In all the pages of this history we find nothing like this.

All these things being true, it is obvious that mankind must be brought to recognize a moral standard and that shall be universally accepted, and that the nations of the world will be brought to recognize the science of the world with command and power. The majesty of this universal accepted moral law must be the safeguard of the nations in the

But moral law must have the sanctions of religion to give it force and to maintain its purity. If, therefore, a moral law of world-wide authority is demanded, a universal religion must be accepted by all the nations in order to secure universal righteousness and universal peace.

Is there any religion but Christianity capable of becoming the religion of the world? Are not all the rest worn out with age, or paralyzed by racial weaknesses and ethnic disabilities? Can Buddhism, Hinduism or Mohammedism become the religion of the whole world and supply the universal rule of right which the conscience of mankind will instinctively recognize as just? Can Confucianism confer a moral code on the race? No sane man can believe any one or all of these pagan systems able to fill such an office in the world. They are national in origin and racial in limitations. They have no international qualities whatsoever. They are not the kind of people who are inclined to travel abroad.

But Christianity, although of Oriental origin, has showed itself a universal religion. It has passed the test like the sun in the heavens, and has shed its benign beams with equal force upon the widest seas and remotest islands.

Wherefore the problem of universal peace is to be solved by the propagation of a pure Christianity by the means of a vigorous and selfless missionary enterprise must go in advance of international commerce to secure justice in trade and safety in navigation.

Such a missionary enterprise is most powerfully promoted by the founding and fostering of Christian institutions to which the vigorous minds of all nations will be inclined to come for instruction.

It has not been good for the world that the nations for more than fifteen

In the name of the well-being of our country we call upon the military authorities to take the most energetic measures of affairs by a few exemplary punishments, for this method of dress is neither fashionable nor artistically beautiful nor does it comport with feminine prestige.

WHAT I SAW IN EUROPE

Impressions of an Atlanta Man Who Escaped from Germany as the Kaiser Was Mobilizing. As an Outcome of the War, He Predicts a High Court of the Nations and an International Police

IN the following interview, Dr. J. J. Hall, of Atlanta, predicts that a high court of the nations and an international police force will result from the European war. Dr. Hall is director for the South Atlantic states of the American Peace society.

He saw Europe at peace, Europe awakening, and in London had first-hand pictures of the battlefields—news from men at the front who wrote that one could walk for miles over the bodies of the slain.

Early in August last summer I sailed from New York City as a delegate to the International Peace conference in Constance, Germany. At that time there was no hint of strife in the air, the passage was pleasant, myself and other delegates landed on the continent aglow with the pleasures of our journey and the high mission of peace.

I passed through Belgium and France on my way to Constance. Alsace-Lorraine, so soon to be once more the shuttlecock of grapple nations, spread before us in all the beauty of close-cropped farm land, stretches of waving grain, neat houses, peasant folk.

The Forts of France. The only alien impression in all that fair landscape, the one grim manifesto, was at the border—the forts. As we crossed into Alsace, we remarked on it. They all faced toward the north, the eyes of France ever toward the north—and Germany.

But at that time we had no thought of war. Belgium was a panorama of checkerboard fields and bustling cities, where the cathedrals towered nobly high among busy blocks of houses and streets shot with rumbling buses and automobiles and cars.

It was that way in Liege. I hardly noticed the forts either going or returning, so I cannot say how they looked. But the city itself was one of those thriving little European centers of trade and art, with the mold of quaint landmarks and museums and old churches. It was hidden beneath a flowery coating of bustle and bustle and amusement and queer foreign jabber.

The Kaiser Goes to War. Then came Germany. We went to sleep in Constance one night with rumors of war dining our ears. We woke the next day with the clash of armored men about us, the tramp of marching feet rolling in our windows, the flaming enlistment posters on every tree and fence corner. This, all in the midst of a peace conference.

to chill the blood, the steady, steely manner in which those German forces mobilized.

For three days there, from dawn to dawn, a never-ending tide of Germans swelled into Constance and out again, south. They came in on every train, disembarked without a hitch, tramped through the broad, asphalted streets, embarked on another train, and were gone.

I do not think there was a half hour of the day when Germans were not pouring into Constance and pouring out again. They came in trains, on horseback, in automobiles and aeroplane, in wagon and foot, dundrappings, pointed helmets, tramping feet, legion on legion, Germans, Germans, Germans. It seemed that gray sea would ebb some day; but on the day I left Constance it was flowing as steadily and as rhythmically as the first hour it flowed in from the north. For all I know it's flowing yet, on and on toward France.

We found it fairly easy to get away. At that time, regulations were not so strictly enforced as they were later; in fact, the Germans were as eager as we were to have us swept aside, especially careful in how they treated Americans and aided them on their return to their own country.

And so we hustled out of Germany. It was a quick night trip by speeding train. We left Constance on August 3. On the 4th I found myself in London.

In Constance there was no attempt to hide the marching men. They were off to grim war, and the people knew it. They were hurling legions on France, and the people knew it. Here in London, there were no marching troops. In the day-time one saw many soldiers around the streets, many tourists storming the steamship offices, many closed shops. But there was no visible going to war.

Only as I lay wide awake in my hotel bed at night I could hear outside in the dark streets that steady tramp, tramp. England's army moved by night. Germany's moved by day and by night. England's soldiers wheeled by in the black, bound no one knew whither. They were vanished by morning. Where one saw a camp at sunset was a litter of trash and stake-holes at day-break.

No man I saw looked as if he wanted to go to war. No throng I passed sped them with a glad word. War was a terrible thing to these people, every one. They knew that "civilized warfare" is an impossibility; that their brothers and their fathers and their husbands were going out to kill and in turn be killed.

There is no quarter on the firing line. And they knew it. Sober faces in Constance, sober faces in London and in Liege, stern-set with sheer doggedness. No cheers, no martial music, only the roll of drums and the tramp of feet and a crowd, silent when it was not so torn.

But when I returned to London on my final way home to the states things had changed. Misery had swept down in a night. Dispatches from the front told of sunken battieships of far-flung battle lines, of regiments annihilated at a blow, of slitting death from a clear sky, of war in all its horrid phases. I saw some letters from an English rocky at the front. "For a mile we walked on dead bodies," he wrote. Again: "The dead lay piled four and five feet high in the trenches. They made a barrier of bodies over which we aimed our guns." One man told of the regiment they called the Black Watch. It had been annihilated in a charge in Belgium. Advancing in solid phalanx against a German trench, it had been ripped to atoms. Not a man survived. "The cannon tore a livid red road through them," said the letter. "Our men toppled like a field of grain before a scythe."

It was estimated that no less than 25,000 Germans fell at Liege, the bombardment of which was taking place while I was in London the last time. In the letters, it was told how some regiments lost all their officers, how fifty out of five hundred survived after three days' fighting. I asked one Englishman how long he thought the war would last. He was an authority. He said: "Two years." In my opinion, I think it will last but one. Then what?

I think this is the last war. It will be followed by international peace. The terrible results of the fiendish conflict will shock the nations into awe. They will cry a cessation of killing.

Peace, I believe, will be preserved then in this way. An international police force, controlled by the high court of nations, will be formed. They will arbitrate all questions. The armies and navies of all nations will be reduced by general agreement. The military power will be in peace hands, formed of all nations, shall preserve intact the good name and the power of all peoples, and lead us into a universal brotherhood.
